CARTER SAYS HE MAY TAKE PART

Whether or no Governor Carter will take any part in the present political campaign is still undecided, but in any event it will not be until the close of the fight that he will be seen on the platform.

"I am really too much occupied at present to give the matter the consideration that it deserves," said the Governor this morning. "I do not in any sense share in the view that the governor of a state or territory should by reason of his office refrain from taking part in a political campaign, and if I thought that it would do any good I would not hesitate to take part perhaps later on. The idea of trying to aid in lifting politics to a higher level appeals to me. I should like to see a campaign free from personalities, a campaign which would be one of issues in which all of the best element of the community would take part and if I could do anything towards bringing about that end I would sacrifice a good deal. On the other hand I am not an issue in the present campaign. The policy which as governor I have adopted and the plans which I have carried out are those in which I have confidence, and I believe that time will show that they are all right. So far as the governorship goes I wish to lend what dignity I can to the office, so it is hardly worth while replying to the puerile and petty attacks made by persons without examination or investigation."

"Every person judges the acts of another from his own point of view," concluded Governor Carter, "and some people should be careful when they pass judgment lest they are standing down in a valley and are fondly imagining that they can see the whole horizon."

THE CONFAB AT MOHONK

Much local discussion has been aroused by the cable news that at the Mohonk conference yesterday Gorman Gilman declared that it was a grave error to give Hawaiians suffrage and W. N. Armstrong predicted Asiatic control of the islands. The conference in question was a general discussion of the affairs of the new island territories of the United States, as well as of Indians and was attended by many prominent men. The speakers included a number of men of national repute.

For more than twenty years Lake Mohonk has been the scene of annual assemblies for the promotion of certain human and philanthropic interests which have given the place a world-wide fame and influence. The first of these assemblies of conferences, as they are called, was held in October, 1882, in the interest of the Indians. These Indian conferences have been held regularly at Lake Mohonk every year since, always in October. These conferences grew out of

BROWN AND CHILLINGWORTH OUT OF THEIR OFFICES

As the result of a disagreement with Governor Carter over police matters, High Sheriff A. M. Brown tendered his resignation this afternoon to the Governor as head of the Territorial police department. The resignation was at once accepted and William Henry, the jailor warden of the Oahu penitentiary, was asked by Governor Carter to become High Sheriff, and accepted the appointment. Mr. Hatter is to be the new deputy.

This interview occurred about 2 o'clock this afternoon. Shortly after 3 o'clock Governor Carter, Mr. Henry and Auditor Fisher went to the police station where a conference was had between them relative to the retirement of Brown and Henry taking the new position.

With the retirement of Brown, Deputy High Sheriff Chillingworth also retires. He was called into the office of the High Sheriff and there notified by the Governor that Henry was the new High Sheriff and would appoint his own deputy. Mr. Hatter is to succeed Mr. Chillingworth.

Henry will take charge at once. The entire police force will assemble tomorrow morning to receive their commissions from the new High Sheriff. "There was no friction about the matter," said Governor Carter. "The High Sheriff and I could not agree about certain matters pertaining to the management of the police department and the enforcement of the laws. We had a conversation this afternoon, and as we did not agree, the High Sheriff said that he had better withdraw and allow full scope in the carrying out of my views. I said that if he desired to do so, all right. He sat down and wrote out the letter at once. I then called up Mr. Henry and asked him to accept the position, and he did so."
